This opinion has been established on the basis of a translation from the original language into the following language

_____, which is the language of a translation furnished for the purposes of international search (under Rule 12.3 and 23.1(b)).

2. With regard to any nucleotide and/or amino acid sequence disclosed in the international application and necessary to the claimed invention, this opinion has been established on the basis of:

a. type of material

a sequence listing

table(s) related to the sequence listing

b. format of material

furnished subsequently to this Authority for the purposes of search.

3. ☐ In addition, in the case that more than one version or copy of a sequence listing and/or table(s) relating thereto has been filed or furnished, the required statements that the information in the subsequent or additional copies is identical to that in the application as filed or does not go beyond the application as filed, as appropriate, were furnished.

Priority

1. ☒ The following document has not yet been furnished:

☒ copy of the earlier application whose priority has been claimed (Rule 43*bis*.1 and 66.7(a)).

☐ translation of the earlier application whose priority has been claimed (Rule 43*bis*.1 and 66.7(b)).

Consequently it has not been possible to consider the validity of the priority claim. This opinion has nevertheless been established on the assumption that the relevant date in the claimed priority date.

2. ☐ This opinion has been established as if no priority had been claimed due to the fact that the priority claim has been found invalid (Rules 43*bis*.1 and 64.1). Thus for the purposes of this opinion, the international filing date indicated above is considered to be the relevant date.

Box No. V	Reasoned statement under Rule 43bis.1(a)(i) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement
1. Statement
Novelty (N)	Claims	6-12	YES
	Claims	1-5	NO
Inventive step (IS)	Claims	7-8, 10	YES
	Claims	1-6, 9, 11	NO
Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims	1-12	YES
	Claims		NO
2. Citations and explanations:
1. The following documents are referred to in this report:
D1: US-6349231 (T. Musha) 19-02-2002
D2: US-5311877 (A. Kishi) 17-05-1994
D3: DE-19801009 (Daimler Chrysler) 22-04-1999
D4: DE-19702748 (Kirchlechner-Schwarz M.) 18-09-1997
2. Claim 1 does not fulfill the requirements of PCT Article 6 because the subject matter for which protection is sought is not clearly defined. In the claim, the applicant attempts to define the subject matter through the result to be achieved; in doing so, however, only the problem to be solved is indicated, without offering the necessary technical features for achieving this result. The applicant must explain how the brain wave signals are measured.
Claims 5-9 likewise do not fulfill the requirements of PCT Article 6 because the subject matter of for which protection is sought consists of so many and/or combinations.
3. The present application does not fulfill the requirements of PCT Article 33(1) because the subject matter of claims 1-5 is not novel within the meaning of PCT Article 33(2).
3.1 For independent claim 1, D1 describes a procedure for activating occupant support devices in a vehicle (column 7, lines 12-26) in which brain wave signals of the driver are technically measured (column 2, lines 8-23) and the intention of the driver is assessed by means of the brain wave signals using real time processing (drawing 2) and, based on the intention of the driver, measures for conveying the instantaneous status of the vehicle are activated in advance in a vehicle status adapted to the intention of the driver. (column 7, lines 12-20)
3.2 For dependent claims 2-3, D1 describes a procedure for measuring the brain wave signals of a driver (column 2, lines 8-12)
3.3 For dependent claim 4, D1 describes a procedure for carrying out real time processing of the measured signals by methods of signal processing that make it possible to evaluate the measured signals without protracted training (column 6, lines 12-65)
3.4 For dependent claim 5, D1 describes a procedure for the determination of coherence masses (based on the base load between input signals (column 4, lines 24-67).

Box No. V	Reasoned statement under Rule 43bis.1(a)(i) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement
-----------	--

4. The present application does not fulfill the requirements of PCT Article 33(1) because the subject matter of claims 6, 9, 11 is not based on an inventive step within the meaning of PCT Article 33(3).

The subject matter of claim 6 is therefore differentiated from D1 by the fact that a filtering is carried out with the aid of a smoothing procedure.

This feature, however, has already been used for the same purpose in a similar procedure; compare D2, especially column 6, lines 30-47. If a person skilled in the art wants to achieve the same purpose using a procedure according to D1, it is possible for him, without further effort, to use the features with corresponding effect with the subject matter of D1 as well. In this way, he would succeed, without inventive activity, in performing a procedure according to claim 6.

The argument above also applies analogously to claims 9 and 11.

For claim 9, D3 describes a procedure for the optimization of the vehicle's sensitivity to braking (column 3, line 62 – column 4, line 11).

For claim 11, D4 describes a procedure with the use and integration of brain wave signals in a continuous monitoring of alertness (column 1, lines 42-50).

The person skilled in the art could combine the features from D3 and D4 named above with the features from D1 without inventive step in order to achieve the teaching of claims 6, 9 and 11. For this reason, dependent claims 6, 9 and 11 do not fulfill the requirements of PCT Article 33(1).
